£50 A SQUARE FOOT.

HUGE FIGURE FOR LAND NEAR THE BANK.

People passing the Mansion House must for some time have noticed workmen demolishing some neighbouring buildings. These demoli-tions are the result of a huge deal in City property which has recently taken place.The site affected comprises Nos. 1-6 Lombard-st., formerly the property of Messrs. Smith, Payne, and Smith, the bankers (now amalgamated with the Union Bank). This site, which accommodated the bankers themselves, and several other firms, such as Messrs. Matheson and Co., Messrs. Mullens, Marshall, and Co., and the Life Association of Scotland, has now been sold to the Scottish Provident Institution.
The transaction was clearly described at the annual general meeting of the Contributors of the Institution the other day. "The Institution," said the chairman of the meeting, "has recently acquired central premises in the City of London, Nos. 1 to 6, Lombard st., adjacent to the Mansion House, and in close proximity to the Bank of England."

METHOD OF PURCHASE.

It was decided that the most convenient method of carrying out the arrangements connected with the purchase would be through the intervention of a limited company, and "The Scottish Provident Institution Buildings, Limited," was accordingly formed—the whole interest in which is held by the Institution, with the exception of a minority of deferred shares taken over by the vendors of the property as part payment of the price.It is the intention to rebuild these premises, and thereafter to obtain a permanent mortgage over the property; but, pending the rebuilding, it was thought it would be advantageous that the Institution should lend temporarily to the "Buildings Company," upon mortgage of the property, the sum of £500,000; and this sum was borrowed from the bank, secured on certain of the Institution's assets.When the buildings are completed, the City offices of the Institution will be moved there.

UTILISING THE SITE.

Upon the site will be erected a handsome block of buildings, to be known as the Scottish Provident Institution Buildings, Limited. It will extend from the Mansion House to St.
Swinth's-lane. An important Scottish Provi-dent Institution, and Messrs. Smith, Payne, and Smith returning to their old site, while the rest of the property will, no doubt, be let to firms in the City. The entire site cannot be covered until the Gresham Club, which occupies a portion of the area, quits. But, with this exception, the new block can be completed within 18 months.

WORTH A ROUND MILLION.

At what figure the site changed hands is not known; but, seeing that £500,000 was raised upon mortgage of the property, that the mortgage money would, of necessity, largely fall short of the estimated value, and that the site is practically at the heart and centre of the world, the land must be worth quite a round million, or over £50 per square foot.As the site covers nearly half an acre, the value of the property works out at about £2,000,000 an acre.This price is by no means unprecedented for the golden "square mile." A decade ago the freehold ground rent of No. 10, Cornhill was sold at a price which gave a value of £245,000 per acre.

SEVEN SHILLINGS AN INCH.

Of course, rents are extremely high in the City area, a single room near the Royal Exchange having been known to let for between £7,000 and £10,000 a year. Four years ago, freehold on Cornhill—No. 35—sold at the price of over £50 per square foot.
But as one gets further away from the charmed area, values, of course, go down.
Thus, at the top of Cheapside, 500 ft. fetched in July, 1901, £13,000, or £25 a square foot. One writer has calculated that land within a furlong radius of the Bank of England is worth about 7s. an inch. Yet in July, 1901—the same month as that in which the Cheapside land was sold—freehold land near Lincoln's inn was sold at 14d. a yard (with a cottage thrown in).Of course, property in the West-end has also attained enormous values. Thus, for the widening of Piccadilly, the C.C. purchased a strip of land fronting Piccadilly and St.
James's-st.: the area contained about 1200 square feet, and as the price agreed upon was £4,000, the value worked out at £34 a square foot, or £1,488,300 per acre. This sum, however, included compensation for disturbance.—London Morning Leader.

A NEW AND DEADLY AIRSHIP.

Prohibition by the Hague Tribunal of the use of battling balloons or similar devices has expired by its time limitation of five years, and in the absence of renewal of declaration inventors of warships of the air are getting busy in preparation for the next big conflict at sea.
A French inventor, Juilliot, has contrived an airship, which the French Government has accepted as suitable for war purposes, but the details of construction are carefully kept secret.French experimentation in dirigible balloons is known to be persistent and notably successful. It is to be expected that knowledge so gained will be tested for practical use by the French War Department. That such is the case is evident from the fact that the Balloon is expert in the contrivance of boats for fighting under water, and now with their new Balloon to pour down explosives from above, France will be able in the event of another war to completely surround an enemy with terrifying engines of assault than was ever before possible in the history of war. The news sounds dreadful, but really lovers of peace will welcome the prospect of such an addition to the deadliness of war; for as soon as warfare reaches a certain degree of destructiveness peace will come of force, and belligerency be its own cure. However large may be the majority of men who like to fight, there is a still larger majority who do like to commit suicide.—S. F. Call.

ANGLO-RUSSIAN RELATIONS.

CENTRAL ASIAN UNDERSTANDING.

CHINESE APPREHENSION.

[From Our Own Correspondent.]

Shanghai, 24th May, 2.40 p.m.

A despatch from Peking announces that the conference of the English and Russian Legations has arrived at a settlement on the "question of the dominant authority in Central Asia."

It is apprehended by the Chinese Government that an Anglo-Russian agreement, with reference to Tibet, will speedily be arrived at.

An understanding between the two Governments relating to Mongolia and the New Dominion is also believed to be approaching an early conclusion.

[A Reuter telegram, of the 17th inst., to the Straits papers says that the Daily Telegraph believes that a statement, said to be substantially true, has been made public in Berlin about a convention being about to be concluded between Great Britain and Russia.

The convention is reported to be the means for settling outstanding difficulties between the two Powers in Persia and Central Asia.—Ed., H.K.T.]

A BUFFALO AMOK.

EUROPEAN CYCLIST TOSSED.

A sensational accident occurred at Kuala Lumpur on the 11th May at about 4 o'clock. Mr. H. W. Davidson, of the firm of Messrs. McAlister and Co., Singapore, was cycling from Yap Ah Loy Street towards the Padang at the time mentioned. When just abreast of the new restaurant between Old Market Square and Market Street bridge, he met a water buffalo charging along the street. The brute, charged at him, tossing him and the bicycle into the air. Mr. Davidson fell into a drain under the wall of the new building, and this it was that saved his life, for the buffalo could not get at him. The bicycle was badly smashed. Mr. Davidson was perfectly conscious of everything that happened, and, says the Malay Mail, his description of his experience as he lay in the gutter and gazed into the eyes of the maddened animal is such as to give one a vivid idea of what an exceedingly narrow escape he had. The buffalo afterwards dashed off down the street, and was chased into the large yard at the rear of the Sanitary Board Offices. He stood near to the building farthest from the road. Around was a great throng representing all nationalities. The Police then stretched a rope across one side of the yard in order to prevent the buffalo from escaping. The police decided not to shoot the buffalo, on the ground that if it were killed, there would be no getting at the owner. The police then set to work to manoeuvre by hauling carts into line to form a barricade thereby narrowing the space about the doomed beast. The latter stood stock still. But, later, he charged at all intruders. Finally craft prevailed, and when the brute had been seized by the ring through his nose, a Kling marched him off to the pound. Mr. Davidson, escaped with a few cuts about the head and body and a few bruises.

THE CHINESE IMPERIAL POST OFFICE IN 1905.

The report on the working of the Post Office for the year 1905, with the accompanying documents, occupies no fewer than fifty pages of the last Annual Report on the Foreign Trade of China, and shows a continued development and steady progress. The list of establishments now number 1,616, of which number 377 were added during the year. The total of articles dealt with, which was 664 millions in 1904, rose to 76 millions. Parcels advanced from 771,000 to over 1,000,000. From a financial point of view the year was a remarkable one, inasmuch as the Postal Organisation ceased, for the first time since its foundation, to appeal for pecuniary help from the sister service, the Customs, and this notwithstanding the fact that of the promised subsidy more than half was not paid.

Looking at a few of the details of the Report, we find that among the northern districts, those of Peking, Kaifeng, and Chianan show a striking advance, which amounts to over 2,000,000 articles for Peking (Chihli proper) to nearly 1,000,000 for Kaifeng, and over 800,000 for Chianan. Tientsin, with its 500,000 articles for the district, remained nearly stationary. Newchwang fell from 500,000 to a little over 1,000,000, but it is pointed out that this decline is only temporary and was due to military exigencies. There seem, fortunately, to be good prospects of an early recovery.

Turning to Central China, we are reminded that the two chief offices, one at Chungking and the other at Chengtu, the provincial capital, include the whole of Szechuen, which is one of the largest, wealthiest and most populous provinces of China. During the year 30 postal establishments were added to the list, making a total of 125. From about 1,000,000 articles, operations rose to 1,500,000, while parcels increased from 150,000 to over 220,000. Ichang made a great stride forward as did Shasi also. Changsha and Yenchow, in Hunan, are progressing rapidly. Hankow, which commands one of the largest and most promising postal districts of China, continued to be remarkable more for its increase in establishments now numbering 113, than for actual results. The opening of the Ching-Han railway will have a great effect on this important centre. As far as the Chensi province is concerned, the results thus far have been but meagre.

We come next to the Lower Yangtze and neighbouring districts. Ningbo is doing exceedingly well, while substantial progress was made in the Wuhu and Tating districts. Chinkiang has greatly increased its operations. At Shanghai matters have most satisfactorily advanced; that the figures, however, show little or no progress is explained to be due to defective records. Business has been brisk, six new agencies have been added to the list, and numerous box offices have been planted about the Foreign Settlements. Business in the Soochow, Ningbo, and Hangchow districts, prove, likewise, most satisfactory.

The only remaining section to notice is that of the South China and Yunnan stations, in which, of course, Canton holds the first place. Progress has been wonderful there for some time past, its postal possibilities being very great. Next comes Foo how, than which few districts have progressed more satisfactorily. The Wuchow figures are satisfactory also. Amoy nearly doubled its operations, while Swatow also made good advance. In Wenchow and Sanatou business is looking up, but owing to their situation between the sea and a mountainous region poorly populated these two districts have but a restricted development for the future. Tengyueh and Mengtze made a substantial advance, but Kiangchow, Pakhoi, Lungchow, and Yenchow made little progress.

As railway enterprise has a great deal to do with the success of the Imperial Post Office careful notes are taken as to what is being done. The railway programme, as it is now supported by the State, shows ten lines working, eight lines in construction, and fourteen projected lines. Serious improvements have taken place in the Staff organisation of the service. Separate postal contingents have been started at Shanghai, Hankow, Canton, Tientsin, and Peking; foreign assistants are being trained and more importance is given to the useful body of postal officers. Further, the growing importance of some districts has determined the appointment of postal commissioners for the exclusive and special management of postal affairs; Canton, Shanghai, and Peking are now placed in charge of these new appointments, and other districts will be similarly treated. Mr. Piry's concluding paragraph is worth quoting in full. "The outlook for the future of the Postal Service is good, and continued progress may be relied upon. Among its thirty-seven districts there are a dozen as large as most countries in Europe, all with teeming millions. What has been achieved in this immense Empire can only be regarded as a small beginning; yet the official establishment has already taken hold on the people and the country, and matters are sufficiently advanced to foresee that the wave of progress now passing over China can but favour its rapid development and hasten its completion."

The Postal Map of China enables one to see at a glance how widespread are the operations of the Imperial Post Office. By ingenious conventional signs the head and branch offices, agencies, limit of postal districts, boundary of provinces, postal connection by courier as well as by steamer or launch, and the railway lines are all indicated. Perhaps the most valuable appendix is that by Mr. J. Menacini, being a "Note on the Postage Stamps of China, 1878-1905," with descriptive catalogues and plates of the various issues. This is of peculiar interest to philatelists.—M. C. D. News.

THE NEW CHINESE ARMY.

The Re-Shaping of the Far East. By B. L. Putnam Weale. Two volumes. Illustrated. Cloth, 54s, 55s pages. Price, 16.00 net per set. The Macmillan Company.

China and Her People. By Charles Denby, LL.D. Two volumes. Illustrated. Cloth, 27s, 28s pages. Price 5.40 net per set. L. C. Page & Co.

Mr. Putnam Weale's new book is hardly so interesting as his "Manchu and Muscovite." It is burdened by a belated account of the early months of the Russo-Japanese war, is somewhat discursive, and would, as the New York Sun suggests, be improved by elimination and condensation. The semijournalistic tone adopted detracts from its authoritativeness, albeit making it easy reading. But it has striking merits, and well deserves the encomiums bestowed on it by the critics, who seem quite generally of the Chicago Record-Herald's opinion that Mr. Weale "has written the best analysis of the situation in the Far East that we have had since China began to see the new light." The work should, indeed, meet a hearty welcome from the public, if only because of the information it affords regarding a question now agitating the entire Western World—the question of the effect upon China of the triumph of Japan over Russia.

One consequence, as the news despatches have of late made painfully evident, has been the recrudescence of an unmistakable anti-foreign sentiment among the Chinese. This Mr. Weale has anticipated, just as he anticipated in "Manchu and Muscovite" some of the decisive battles of the war. During the campaigning he passed from one section to another of the Chinese Empire, keenly alive of prevailing conditions, and at the same time alert to discover the permanent beneath the transitory. He found a marked diversity of opinion respecting the combatants in the struggle of which the Chinese were pathetically interested spectators. In some provinces self-interest prompted sympathy with the Russians, who had proved excellent customers; elsewhere the sentiment was uncompromisingly pro-Japanese. But everywhere a latent patriotism was to be discerned. From court to court there seemed to be an awakening realization that China must so act as to convince the outside world that she is a member of the family of nations and entitled to be treated accordingly. Mr. Weale found in process and proposal reforms of a nature to make China a very colossus. Of these he deems most significant the reorganization of the army.

Even now, it appears, the work of reorganization has advanced apace. Nor, we are assured, will the old tale of fatal inefficiency be repeated. The writer's investigations lead him to the belief that "every Chinese commander and soldier has at last realized that rifles and ammunition must be properly kept, that drill must be constant, that discipline must be very strict, and that the art of war must be studied day and night before troops can date to face modern armies." The programme outlined is most ambitious. In five years' time it calls for 500,000 men on a peace-footing, and in ten or fifteen years 1,500,000 men on a war-footing, exclusive of the reorganized and enlarged Banner corps. This fighting force, it is clearly Mr. Weale's belief, will put an end to all Occidental plans for the control of China. Japan likewise must abandon hope of holding the destinies of the empire in her keeping. "China," it is declared with emphasis, "is too big and has too much latent strength to be handled by any one country successfully." On the other hand, the prediction is made that "the Chinese are destined to be one of the three great nationalities of the world."

On this showing, we of the West have quite generally underrated the Chinese; and a similar impression is gained from perusing the recently issued memoirs of the late Colonel Denby, who was for some thirteen years United States Minister to China. If Mr. Weale's work suffers from expansiveness, Colonel Denby's may be criticized as an example of condensation, carried to an extreme, particularly in the chapters descriptive of the characteristics and customs of the Chinese. But, like Mr. Weale's, it is valuable as assisting to a better understanding of the problems to be faced in China, and of the future of that country.

Particularly is it of service to American statesmen and business men. Colonel Denby makes no attempt to disguise the fact that he writes from the standpoint of an American diplomat, considering the interests of his own country first, and those of China afterward. With Mr. Weale, he affirms that the policy of the open door and no dismemberment must be continued, and points with pride to the consistent attitude maintained by the United States in this respect. But his experience convinces him that radical reforms are required if we would retain our prestige in China. He does not advocate the repeal of exclusion, perceiving in any grant of influence to Chinese an economic menace to the United States; but he does urge far-reaching changes in the diplomatic and consular service, and his suggestions under this head should be carefully pondered by all American citizens. And, addressing himself specifically to American merchants, he plainly points the way to trade extension.

"Americans (beginning an all too brief chapter) are supposed to be the most adventurous people in the world, but in trade and commerce with foreign countries they do not justify this reputation. Above all things our merchants and manufacturers should study the details of the Chinese trade more than they do. They should send commercial agents to the country to find out for themselves the conditions and needs of trade. What can be more ridiculous than the inquiries which often reached me touching the trade in big buggies in China? I often got letters asking for the names of dealers in buggies in Peking, and enclosing circulars, in English, of course, to be distributed. There isn't a decent road in North China, and in the south there are nothing but paths. The ordinary vehicle in the north is a heavy cart, or wagon. Rich people ride in chairs, the middle classes in carts or litters, and the poor go afoot. There wasn't a single buggy in Peking, and very few vehicles of any kind except carts."

"The Chinese does not want knives and forks, he uses chop-sticks. Above all, he wants cheap things; but when he takes a fancy to an article he will buy it at all hazards, until he commences to counterfeit it, which he soon does."

The critics are warm in their praise of this work. Colonel Denby's opinions, declares The Outlook, "have a permanent value." Boston Transcript finds his style "entertaining and pleasing," and speaks of the "evidences throughout the book of the author's deep study of Chinese character." "Colonel Denby's memoirs," says the Brooklyn Eagle, "will be found equally interesting as the autobiography of a diplomat and as a judicious examination of the history of China," while the Chicago Inter Ocean's verdict is, "An authoritative statement of the Eastern question."—Literary Digest.

CO-OPERATION IN EDUCATIONAL MISSIONS IN CANTON.

Several weeks ago the Rev. T. W. Pearce of Hongkong gave an extremely interesting address before a large and representative gathering of missionaries in Canton in which he described what he had observed of the federation of mission work in North China. At that meeting a motion was passed requesting each mission to appoint one of its members to act on a Committee of federation.

The committee held its first meeting on March 27th, at the home of Rev. W. W. Clayton. In addition to Mr. Clayton, who represented the L.M.S., there were present Rev. S. G. Topp representing the English Wesleyan Mission, Rev. C. A. Nelson of the A.B.C.F.M., Rev. McNeur representing the New Zealand Presbyterian Church, Rev. H. O. T. Burkwall of the B. and F.B.S., Rev. O. F. Wisner of the Canton Christian College, Rev. Von Qualen of the American Scandinavian Mission, and Rev. C. E. Spore of the U. B. Mission. The members of the committee were deeply interested in the federation movement as it is being conducted in North China, and heartily in sympathy with its extension in this part of the field. At the same time, they recognized that the conditions which made the immediate success of the movement possible in North China were peculiar and that these conditions are absent to a large extent here in the South. The Boxer movement swept away all mission work in the north and when the missions received their indemnities, they were free to reorganize their work on the most approved lines. Under these conditions it was comparatively easy for them to come together and for them to secure the consent of their home societies to the arrangements of union which they recommended. Vested interests here in the South will necessarily make the movement a more gradual one. At the same time, the committee heartily recommended that, as opportunity offers, the several missions undertake to unite their various lines of work or at least to co-operate with each other. It was pointed out that in the development of a new normal work for the training of native helpers, three societies, namely the L.M.S., the A.B.C.F.M., and the U. B. Mission are planning to unite so as to build one normal school for the use of the three missions. Other missions are invited to join in this movement and it appears likely that in time there will be a still further grouping together of this kind of work.

It was still further suggested that all along the educational line the missions might profitably co-operate more than they do at present. Arrangements were made to have a graded scheme of school work drawn up and presented to the missionary body for discussion. The secretary of the meeting presented a statement of these facts at the missionary conference held the next day. It was the sense of his report that this curriculum should attempt to co-ordinate educational work of all grades in such a way as to lead up to the courses offered by the Canton Christian College as the final stage in the educational work.

For the benefit of those who may wish to learn the details of the plan of federation which have been recommended to their respective home boards by the workers of the three societies mentioned above, we (South China Collection) give in full the following report.

FEDERATION IN MISSION WORK.

The following suggestions on Federation, for training of Preachers and Bible-women, were agreed upon, March 22nd, 1906, by Committees appointed by the U.A.M., L.M.S. and A.B.C.F.M.

1. General.—All these Societies are one in faith and aim.

2. All these Societies mentioned, recognize the paramount importance of, and need for, a trained ministry.

3. All these Societies recognize the extreme difficulty of establishing training work alone, and welcome the possible solution of the difficulty by united work.

4. For the working of each school, one missionary shall be elected to act as President. For the Theological School, a man, and for the Women's Bible-School, a woman, would be needed to make this his or her chief work. In addition, each other Mission shall be required to appoint one worker to give of his or her time for teaching, as much as a Committee shall require.

5. Government.—a. The two schools shall be under one governing body, to be called the Union College Council.

b. This Council shall consist of three members from each Mission.

c. Any recognized member of a Mission, who is married or woman, shall be eligible for appointment. Each Mission shall appoint at least one woman.

d. The work of the Council shall be the general oversight of the work in both schools. They shall appoint a Chairman, a Treasurer, and Secretary from their number.

e. The election of a President for each school shall be by ballot among the members of the Council.

f. Any recognized male missionary of the three Missions, shall be eligible for the post of President for the Theological School. In the same manner, any female missionary shall be eligible for the post of President of the Bible-women's School.

g. The President shall be elected for 5 years only. Absence through furlough, implies resignation on the part of the President.

h. After 5 years' or after furlough, the same missionary may be re-elected.

For convenience, this shall be held at $600 in gold. This rule shall hold for both Schools.

2. Each Mission shall further pay a fixed rate per head per month, for each student, whether male or female.

3. After the Federation scheme is adopted, no Mission can withdraw from the Financial responsibilities without two years' full notice.

4. In the event of any Mission withdrawing, allowance shall be made for all monies paid by the Mission for lands and buildings.

IV. By a unanimous vote of the Federated Missions, other Missions shall be permitted to join by subscribing to the Constitution, and by sharing proportionately in the incurred initial and current expenses.

C. A. NELSON,
Secretary.
